Your Practical Guide to … Accidents at Work

An accident at work can have a major impact on your life. By instructing our experts to help you, you can be sure that you will be in safe hands.

After an Accident at Work you should:

- Obtain full details of any witnesses – they will be essential in proving your case.
- Take photographs of the scent. If possible include something that will help to scale and date the accident (such as a newspaper with a date on it).
- Report the accident to the person in charge and request a copy of the report.

Seek Treatment:

- If you are injured, seek medical advice, either visit your Doctor, or in more serious cases the local Hospital. Your medical records will be an important part of your claim.
- Keep a diary of your injuries as you go through the recovery process, this will play an important part in assessing the long term implications of your accident.

Can I claim?

We offer free initial advice, so please call us if you are unsure about whether you can claim, but in most cases you can claim if:

- Someone else was to blame for your injuries (for example, faulty equipment or a cable left in a dangerous position).
- The accident happened within the last three years.

You have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

In most cases it is free to claim and you will receive 100% of your compensation if successful, plus most employers are insured against claims of this nature.
Remember a claim must be made within three years of the accident so don't delay.
